

The Society of Sport & Event Photographers (SEP) had a team of attorneys evaluate U.S. Patent 6,985,875 and PhotoCrazy advising photographers of the existence of a patent and offering up a license for the use of the patented process.

SEP's conclusions were published on their website at the following LINK. Some of their conclusions were:

“Clearly if you are in the business of taking photographs of race participants and providing the resulting photos online, you will want to seriously evaluate your exposure.”

“There is nothing illegal in advising photographers of the existence of a patent and offering up a license for the use of the patented process.”

SEP or the PPA does not sponsor nor endorse, nor is in any way affiliated with PhotoCrazy or the patents discussed in the article.
